REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The prior art fails to disclose or render obvious the specific structure of applicant's invention as set forth in claim 3 in particular. Here, applicant recites a damping device including a pivot lever having a portion housed within a housing in which the a furniture or cabinet structure moves the lever by contact and further including a two stage gear means with a speed ratio imposed on a first rotation damper. The portion of the lever held in the housing includes a toothed segment concentrically defining a bearing axis, the lever is attached to a journal of a second rotation damper held in the housing. The toothed segment intermeshing with a pinion disposed within the housing, the pinion interacts with a toothed wheel of the first rotation damper. The pinion comprises two toothed segments, one segment defines a smaller radius than the other segment which defines a larger radius, where the smaller radius segment intermeshes with the toothed segment of the lever and the larger radius segment intermeshes with the toothed wheel of the first rotation damper.

None of the prior art references used singly or in combination discloses or suggest the specific structural arrangement or the combination of structural limitations pertaining to the pinion of Salice as set forth above.

Lautenschlaeger et al is considered the closest prior art reference. Lautenschlaeger et al discloses a damping device including a housing structured and arranged to be fastened to a fixed wall part, a plunger is slidably guided in the housing, wherein the plunger is arranged to be slid to its closing region by a furniture part and means for damping a closing movement comprising at least a two stage gear means having a speed ratio and impinging on a rotation damper. Further, Lautenschlaeger et al explains that the plunger carries a toothed gear segment concentrically to its bearing axis, wherein the toothed gear segment intermeshes with a pinion within the housing, where the pinion interacts with a toothed wheel attached to a journal of the rotation damper. However, Lautenschlaeger et al does not specifically disclose or suggest a pinion comprises two toothed segments, one segment defines a smaller radius than the other segment which defines a larger radius, where the smaller radius segment intermeshes with the toothed segment of the lever and the larger radius segment intermeshes with the toothed wheel of the first rotation damper. Nor does any other prior art reference cure the deficiencies of Lautenschlaeger et al. Therefore, the Examiner believes applicant's claims are patentably distinct from the prior art made of record.
